Principal Chatter

This week we have three teachers at AGOSCI’s 12th Biennial Conference, in Brisbane. AGOSCI is a group representing people with complex communication needs, as well as those who live, know or work with people with complex communication needs. Established in 1981, AGOSCI aims to lobby for the rights of people with complex communication needs, increase public awareness of complex communication needs, and to provide relevant educational and professional development events across Australia.

The conference this year will not only display the latest in communication technology, but will also provide insight into cutting edge strategies being used around the world. Our teachers have embarked on this professional development opportunity with the express purpose of strengthening our whole school communication program. As a community we acknowledge that by improving all our students' ability to understand and communicate we are providing them with greater opportunity to access a rich quality lifestyle as adults.

Our education staff are always working to improve outcomes for all students by improving our collective knowledge and expertise.
